With letters by Nettlau to Jacques Gross and V. All passing socialisme et antithéologisme (Anarchisme t. 2) (French Edition) judgment on past procedure is conditioned upon the idea of a correct procedure - only with regard to this idea can past procedure be described as good or bad, expedient or inexpedient; as so is all deliberation on future procedure - only with regard to this idea does one inquire whether it will be right, or at any rate expedient, to proceed in a given manner. Pagirev,D. With a letter to Nettlau by E. So, just as man was naturally compelled to develop or realize himself as a natural entity - ultimately becoming a cultural entity - so he is compelled, in accordance with his humanity or human potential, to develop or realize himself as such a cultural entity.
